External Applicants - If you are not shortlisted, you will be sent no further communication due to the high volume of external job applications that we receive, but please do not be discouraged for applying for other vacancies within Norfolk and Suffolk Constabularies.

Internal Applicants - If you were not shortlisted, the HR Service Centre will inform you via email, advising who you can contact for feedback.

If your application has been shortlisted, we will write to you to invite you to attend a selection process. The selection process will usually involve an interview but, depending on the role, may also involve use of other assessment methods such as ability testing, presentations, work samples, etc. If such an assessment method is required, it will be stated in your invitation letter.

Reasonable adjustments should be made to allow individuals with a disability to undertake the required selection process. If a shortlisted applicant informs the HR Service Centre that they are disabled, the HR Service Centre will contact the individual to ascertain whether any reasonable adjustments are necessary for the interview/assessment, e.g. hearing loop, sign language interpreter, etc.

Interviews

The most common selection process we use are interviews where candidates are asked a series of questions based on your knowledge and experience in relation to the activities and responsibilities of the post. Candidates are also asked questions on their technical skills/knowledge in relation to the job description and person specification. All candidates will be asked the same set of questions, but any probing questions may differ according to your response.

You will be required to provide examples from past experiences which demonstrate your ability to carry out the activities of the role applied for. Do take time to think about when you have demonstrated a particular skill or behaviour, so spend a few minutes going back into your memory and noting particularly good pieces of work, projects or situations where you know you did well over the last couple of years.

The interviewers will normally be a panel of two or three people. They may not have seen your application, so it is better to assume that the panel knows nothing about you. Remember the interview is your opportunity to provide examples of your experiences in your responses to questions, in the context of the role for which you are applying.

Vetting

Under current legislation you will also have to supply documentary proof of your right to live and work in the United Kingdom. You will therefore receive a Vetting Identification form with your interview letter, which you should complete and bring with you to the interview with proof of identification and residence.

If you are successful at interview, you will be asked for full Vetting Information which will be reviewed by the Vetting Unit and a decision will be made regarding security clearance. All information given will be held in confidence. Please refer to the 'Vetting – Frequently Asked Questions' information sheet at the end of these guidance notes for further details.

Successful candidates will also be sent an Occupational Health Questionnaire which will be sent directly to Occupational Health who will confirm whether or not you are fit enough for the proposed appointment.

Interviews - Results

All candidates, successful or otherwise, will be informed in writing of the result of the selection process in which they have taken part.

If you are successful at interview you will be contacted by a member of the interviewing panel who will offer you the position verbally. This offer will be subject to security/vetting checks, satisfactory references, and health assessment. Thereafter, you will receive an official appointment letter and contract confirming the offer made to you.

Full details of the application, short-listing and selection procedures are outlined in the Recruitment of Police Staff policy available by clicking here.

Vetting — Frequently Asked Questions

What is the vetting policy within Norfolk & Suffolk Constabularies?

As part of the recruiting process for employment, internal moves or contractual work, Norfolk & Suffolk Police complete a vetting review that includes checks on police intelligence records and finance checks.

Why is vetting necessary?

POLICE
NORFOLK & SUFFOLK
working together for you

Investigations at national and international level have provided evidence that criminals actively target police staff or others connected with the police service that could be used to assist them in furtherance of their criminal activities. Members of the press and employees of private detective agencies also target police staff to obtain confidential information. Another security risk is the potential for criminals or their associates to infiltrate the work force. In addition, the Police Service is required to carry out National Security Checks for those in certain sensitive posts to counter threats, which may stem from foreign intelligence services and terrorist groups.

How does the vetting system work?

You will be asked to complete a form to provide personal information and confirm your identity and place of residence. For roles requiring enhanced vetting, additional forms will be supplied to you to provide financial information and/or details for national security checks to be completed. Details are checked against criminal records, intelligence records and credit reference agencies. A decision will be made following assessment of the information and taking into consideration your suitability to have access to police premises, information and systems. If there is a delay with your appointment a review will be undertaken to ensure that no changes have occurred since completion of the forms.

What if I keep quiet about something in my past and hope no one finds out?

Knowingly providing false information, or concealing information on a vetting form or at any subsequent interview could be regarded as evidence of unreliability and/or dishonesty. Your clearance could be refused because of this, even though what you were seeking to conceal would not in itself have caused a problem, or lead to a refusal of clearance. Furthermore, your clearance could be removed at a later date if the facts subsequently come to light.

Remember — it is only in the most serious cases that consideration will be given to refusing vetting clearance. The main objective of the vetting procedure is to ensure that members of staff cannot be compromised because they have 'secrets' they do not wish to be disclosed.

Can checks be carried out if I have not been resident in the United Kingdom?

Because of the vetting requirements necessary to be undertaken before employment or access to premises or assets within Norfolk & Suffolk Police, it is difficult to complete thorough checks on individuals who have not been resident in the United Kingdom for the previous three years. Therefore, except in very exceptional circumstances, three year residency is an essential requirement. We also ask that if a foreign national has not resided in the UK for 5 years that they obtain a Criminal Record Certificate from their Embassy in this country.

Do I have to complete the procedure?

For all applicants, if you decide, for whatever reason, that you are unable to complete any particular sections of the questionnaires, you should discuss the matter with the Vetting Officer. This should be done before submitting forms to the Vetting Unit. In some cases it may be necessary for you to be interviewed by the Vetting Officer before a decision about your vetting clearance can be made. The objective of the interview is to obtain sufficient information to enable the Vetting Officer to make a fully informed decision on vetting clearance and to discuss any issues, which are identified.

It must be remembered that persons not vetted under this procedure will be denied unrestricted access to force premises, information or systems. For contractors this could affect their ability to meet their obligations and such risk remains with the contractor. No liability is assumed by the force.

Consent

Although written consent is obtained for vetting checks on applicants, it would not be practical to seek written consent from every person whose details are included in a vetting questionnaire. It is therefore the applicants' responsibility to ensure family members included in the application are notified as part of the applicant's vetting process.

As vetting clearance is a pre-requisite of employment, applicants who refuse to undertake the procedure for themselves or family members should not be considered.

How long does the vetting clearance last?

Police Recruitment Vetting (RV) is valid for ten years. If you require an enhanced level of vetting, Management Vetting (MV) this is valid for five years.

Contractor vetting, including partnership workers and volunteers, which is referred to as non-police personnel vetting (NPPV) has three levels. NPPV Level 1 is valid for twelve months, NPPV Level 2 is valid for three years and NPPV Level 3 is valid for five years.

National Security Vetting (NSV) has three levels. Counter Terrorist Check (CTC) is valid for ten years, Security Clearance (SC) is valid for ten years and Developed Vetting (DV) is valid for seven years.

What happens if my circumstances change, will this affect my clearance?

You are obliged to notify the Vetting Unit of any significant changes in your personal circumstances, including partner's details, financial situation and any convictions, cautions, reprimands, warnings, or fixed penalty notices. Failure to notify any significant changes which are later identified could lead to revocation of your clearance. If in doubt, please notify the Vetting Unit who will be able to provide you with some guidance.

If vetting clearance is refused can I appeal?

Internal applicants may appeal to the designated ACPO officer whose decision is final. External applicants have no right of appeal.

In cases relating to national security checks, a separate appeal process is available. Information regarding this process can be supplied by the Vetting Officer upon request.

Financial Position: What is the purpose of financial enquiries?

Financial checks are now completed for all posts. Their purpose is to assess whether you are sensibly managing your finances and have direct or indirect access to sufficient funds to minimise the risk of vulnerability to financial inducement.

It is in this context that details of an individual's finances, and with enhanced vetting procedures that partner's finances are required. However, if you are not aware of the extent of your partner's finances and your partner will not disclose this information to you, you must indicate this in the questionnaire and include as much information as possible.

Individuals are most vulnerable when they have debts or other relevant factors which have not been disclosed. It is recognised that when the information has been provided 'in confidence' the risk of compromise is significantly reduced.

There is no need to worry about mortgage and credit commitments that are in line with your income, providing you are normally able to manage the repayments. Debts only become a problem where they are substantial and individuals fail to take remedial action.

Storage and access

The Vetting Unit is contained within the Professional Standards Department and all vetting forms are stored securely and are only handled by the Vetting Unit staff. Personal details are stored on a secure vetting system with access restricted to the Vetting Unit.

All data is stored electronically and where required, paper records are stored for 6 years, in line with current national and Force procedures.

Personal details and applications will not be shared with any third party, unless you are consulted or only in exceptional circumstances.
